

Camper Rights and Code of Conduct

Both the Camper Rights and Code of Conduct are taught on the first night - through introductory remarks with the whole group by the camp director, and followed-up for further conversation with counselors in cabin groups.

Camper Rights

At Covenant Point campers have a set of rights and it is the responsibility of the staff to share with the campers and ensure that these rights are being upheld for all our campers.

As a camper, you have the right...

1. To be treated with respect and dignity
2. To tell someone if feeling uneasy in ANY situation
3. To be taken seriously
4. To have privacy when in private areas (ie. bathroom, shower, cabins)

Camper Code of Conduct

To create an environment of safety (physical, social, emotional and otherwise), inclusion, health, and dignity for all our campers, the following conduct is expected:

1. Be SAFE - stand up for the physical, social, and emotional safety of yourself and others.
2. Be RESPECTFUL - Be respectful in words and actions of other campers, staff, and camp property. Treat others how you want to be treated. Listen to the direction of counselors, program staff, and other campers. Engage cultures, needs, backgrounds, beliefs, and physical abilities different than your own with humility and respect.
3. Be INCLUSIVE - Include and encourage each other all week (no put-downs, bullying, name calling).
4. Be OPEN - Camp is a place where new and beneficial relationships, ideas, and experiences happen.